This is version 1.1 of this document. Slide 23/26 "Dance of the Dragon" (pages 36-37) has been updated thanks to information received from Richard Sears of the Devon Dowzers which has led me to realise that Stage 5 of the Dance of the Dragon involves the Energy Lines disappearing down "Energy Drains" in the Landscape rather than Infinite Vortexes.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

I'm going to tell you why I find earth energies such a complicated subject. I will then explain how over the last 15 years I have been researching how the types of Earth Energy Vortexes (EEVs) and Earth Energy Lines that interact with underground water are actually connected to each other and the earth's magnetic field and how they work in tandem to form what I call the earth's own amazing self-cleansing and balancing system.

Now the problem is that this system only works when these EEVs are in balance, so the most important dowsing question I can ask in my research is "Is this EEV in balance?". In order to explain my theories, I will need to tell you why I think water and light (and how light splits into individual colours) are fundamentally important to this process. Hopefully all these jigsaw pieces will then connect together to make up a picture of a group of Dragons dancing together at certain times of the day and month.

At the end, we'll see how we can assist the earth to keep itself in balance by using the power of colour and water to re-balance EEVs. Hopefully you will then understand why I think the subject of Earth Energies is where science and magic meet.

If you find this of interest please contact me for a link to a private website where I post related articles and case studies.

ARE EARTH ENERGIES COMPLICATED?

I'm going to take you back in time 20 years or so to when I had a series of nervous breakdowns due to stress at work. As a result, the doorways in my brain that allowed me to carry out the logical processes necessary to work as a Project Manager in the IT industry closed and I was pensioned off on ill-health and subjected to a great deal of unwelcome and inappropriate psychiatric treatment that served only to firmly lock those doorways forever and leave me with a form of PTSD. Fast forward to 2006 and although the old doorways never did re-open and I get panic attacks if I ever venture outside my comfort zone and try to re-open them, some new doorways unexpectedly did start to open. I suddenly took an interest in all things esoteric, which was quite out of character for me. Within the space of a few months I had established a dialogue with my Higher Self, learned to do Reiki and found that my hands moved of their own accord and discovered the subject of Earth Energies.

So, when I say I am self-taught, that is exactly what I mean. My mentor is my Higher Self. I was unable to master the art of using dowsing rods until very recently, but since

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

I could feel the electromagnetic energy around a human body when doing Reiki, I just decided to use my hands instead and taught myself to feel the electromagnetic aspect of Earth Energies in this way, effectively using my hands as dowsing tools. This has meant I am able to feel these energies in 3D, allowing me to gain some interesting insights.

Being self-taught I jumped straight in at the deep end and acquired a book on eBay called "The Pattern of the Past" by Guy Underwood which I had heard was one of the seminal books on earth energy dowsing. Underwood was brilliant and way ahead of his time back in the 1950s and 60s. However, he wrote in a very scientific manner and his book is most certainly not one for beginners, especially a beginner whose brain no longer works in a logical manner.

I found out quite recently in a talk given by Maria Wheatley that "The Pattern of the Past" was published posthumously. Underwood's papers were inherited by Maria's late father, Dennis Wheatley, a protégé of Underwood who spent years going through these papers. He eventually discovered that there were seven different versions of the manuscript and the wrong one had been published. Dennis and Maria spent many years trying to understand and simplify Underwood's work. Dennis Wheatley's "Stonehenge, An Investigation into Earth Energies and Ley Lines" and Maria Wheatley's "Divining Ancient Sites: Insights into their Creation" both build upon Underwood's work and can be purchased from Maria's website <http://theaveburyexperience.co.uk/shop/>

ARE WE TALKING THE SAME LANGUAGE?

ARE WE TALKING THE SAME LANGUAGE?

ENERGY LEY (Ley-Line, Alignment, Overground)

ENERGY LINE (Telluric Current, Dragon Line, Serpent Line)
Current of horizontal subtle energy that weaves around the landscape

EARTH ENERGY VORTEX (EEV) - spiral of subtle energy emerging vertically from below ground due to the action of underground water

NODE - Where two or more Energy Lines cross at an Earth Energy Vortex (EEV) by going underground

LEY SYSTEM - Long distance Energy Ley with two Energy Lines of opposing polarity weaving around it and crossing at Nodes

4/26

Another reason I find Earth Energies to be a complicated subject is because we don't all talk the same language. We may use the same terms but many of us have differing understandings of what these terms mean and even more confusingly we often use different terms to explain the same phenomena.

Consequently, I am going to explain here the five terms that I will be using in this document. I'm not suggesting you adopt these terms for yourself, I'm just trying to get us all to sing from the same hymn sheet in the same language in order that we can come into harmony for the next hour or so.

Because all energy by nature travels in spirals there are many, many different types of energy lines, spirals, vortices and nodes that can be dowsed. However, the only ones I am concerned with here are the ones that are associated with underground water.

ENERGY LEY - a straight beam of subtle energy with its central core travelling horizontally one metre above ground level

ENERGY LINE - a current of subtle energy that weaves around the landscape with its central core travelling horizontally one metre above ground level

EARTH ENERGY VORTEX (EEV) - a spiral of subtle energy that emerges vertically from below ground as a result of the action underground water. All flowing water creates an electromagnetic current and it is this current that rises to ground level to form the vortex. I work with two different types of EEV which form in a very similar way but dowse differently at the surface. I call them Infinite Vortexes (represented by a downward pointing triangle) and Capped Vortexes (represented by a diamond)

NODE - where two or more energy lines cross at an Infinite Vortex by going underground. When they descend into the vortex any detrimental energy they are carrying is cleansed by the underground water and this is part of what I call the earth's self-cleansing and balancing system.

LEY SYSTEM - This is a composite of all the above terms. It is a long-distance Energy Ley with two Energy Lines of opposing polarity weaving around it and crossing at Nodes. Examples are the Spine of Albion (Elen & Belinus Lines) and the Mary and Michael Lines.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

WHAT ARE EARTH ENERGY VORTEXES AND HOW ARE THEY CREATED?

Blind Spring Networks

A Blind Spring is where underground water is forced upwards under pressure through vertical fissures in the rock strata ending up close to the earth's surface. The moving water creates an electromagnetic field which rises to the surface as a vortex of electromagnetic radiance (light) which comprises two spirals of opposing polarities. This is the most powerful of these types of vortex because the water rises very close to the surface. However, there are also many less powerful vortexes spawned in that same Blind Spring Network. Water will travel horizontally away from the vertically rising shaft to flow along more fissures in the rock strata forming water veins, streams and underground lakes. Every now and again the water will find another vertical fissure and will start to rise upwards once again creating another electromagnetic current. Even if the rising water itself is impeded by the rock strata, the electromagnetic current will rise to the surface and be detectable as a vortex. The closer to ground level the water rises, the more powerful the vortex.

Those vortexes where the water rises closest to ground level are what I call Infinite Vortexes (the blue triangles). This is because the energy coming from them extends outwards, potentially for an infinite distance, until it is impeded by a physical structure or a hedge, ditch or ring of stones. However, those where the water terminates much deeper down as having a "Cap" on them making them look diamond-shaped in profile. This cap effectively acts as a container for the energy so it cannot radiate out as far as that of an Infinite Vortex. Consequently, I refer to them as Capped Vortexes.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

All Infinite vortexes are effectively mini versions of blind springs. A Capped Vortex can become an Infinite Vortex and vice versa if there are changes in the levels of underground water.

At ground level you will be able to dowse the underground water veins and streams radiating away from the blind spring vortex at different depths. Underground water is nearly always running at an angle going uphill or downhill depending on the nature and angle rock strata, so as you dowse along one of these water veins you may find the depth to be gradually increasing or decreasing and you will periodically find more EEVs. Sometimes they will be where water veins cross at different depths, sometimes they may only be associated with one water vein. Some of these EEVs will have caps on, others won't, but if you dowse the depth of the water below the EEV and the power level on the Bovis scale you will find that the Capped Vortexes generally have less power and the water is deeper. The depth of the vertically rising water is also affected by the Moon in the same way as tides are as well as by floods and droughts.

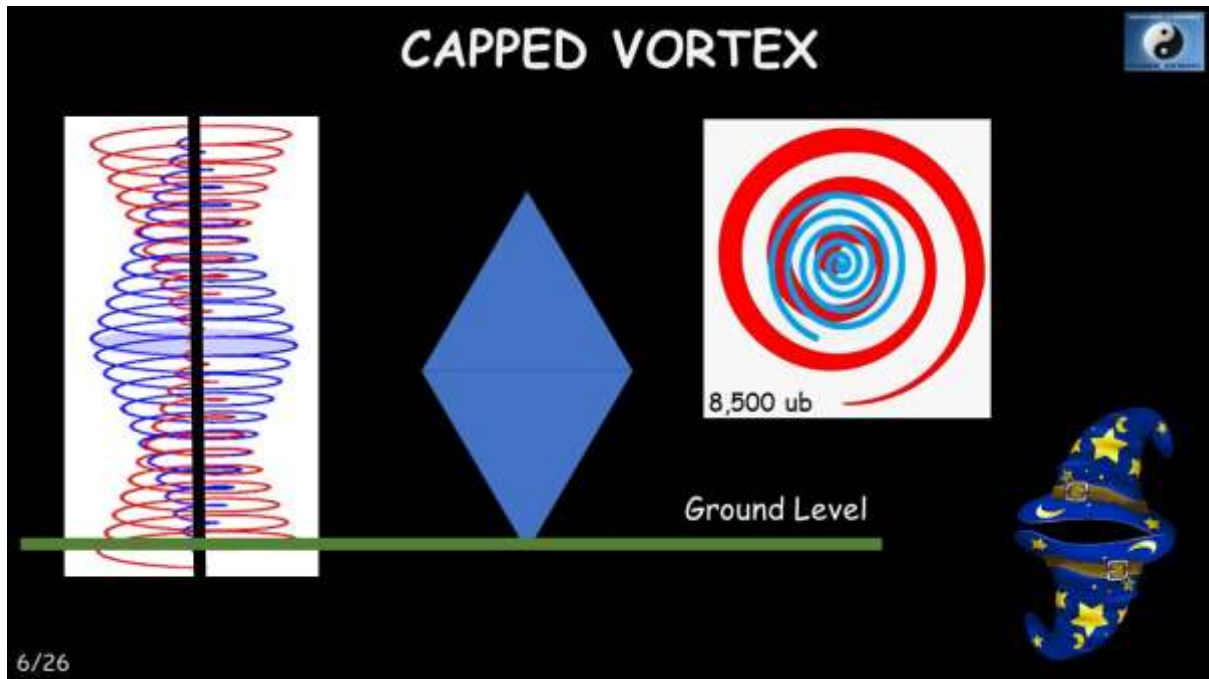

Whether you have a blind spring network and lots of Infinite and Capped Vortexes near where you live will depend very much on the geology. Chalk and Limestone are the ideal geologies for a multitude of these features to form. However, if you are on more dense geologies that do not allow as much underground water to rise to the surface you will still find there are a few EEVs dotted around as spirals will still form at lower levels in different layers of rock strata and rise to the surface, but they will probably be less numerous and less powerful.

Living above Magnesian Limestone topped with a thin layer of clay, I have a Blind Spring under my lawn above which is a Infinite Vortex that also acts as a Node for several Energy Lines, as well as quite a few other EEVs around my home and garden. If it was not for the fact that these energies are constantly surrounding me enabling me to dowse them as often as I like without even leaving home, I would never have realised how they interact together.

Capped Vortexes

A Capped Vortex has a vertical column of electromagnetic radiance (light) that is around 5cm in diameter. This is surrounded by two spirals of opposing polarity, shown here as male (red) and female (blue). In my experience the female dowse as anti-clockwise and the male dowse as clockwise. One of these spirals will be rising upwards and the other going downwards. At any one point you will find one spiral is wider than the other and as you move up from ground level it will either get wider or narrower. If you dowse the vortex as being male that is because the male spiral is wider than the female at the point at which you dowse it (usually ground level or the height you hold your rods at depending how you work). However, if you ask to be shown the female energy you will be able to dowse a smaller spiral within the wider one. It seems to be the friction between these two spirals moving in opposite directions that creates the Capped Vortex.

I relax my hand and hold it above the vortex. My hand is then moved in either a clockwise or anticlockwise spiral depending which energy I have asked to be shown. This is simply me tuning into the electromagnetic energy and going with the flow just as a Reiki practitioner would. I then let the energy move my hand with the flow of the chosen spiral and it will either move up or down and inwards or outwards at the same time. I then ask to be shown the opposite spiral and my hand behaves in reverse. I have shown the Capped Vortex as diamond shaped in profile, but it is effectively two overlapping diamonds.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

You can remember the name and shape of a Capped Vortex by thinking of it wearing a Wizard's hat or cap.

If you stand in a balanced Capped Vortex with your eyes closed and relax you will find it difficult to stand still. You may start to sway in either a clockwise or anticlockwise direction. If you play beautiful music such as Tim Wheater's Gayatri Mantra the vortex will instantly respond and if you are still standing in the vortex you will find yourself swaying gently in time to the music which can be a wonderful meditative experience. You can increase the power of the vortex by playing this type of music, drumming or simply by intent. The spirals will then widen out further than normal and the Bovis reading will increase. As soon as you start to interact with a vortex its energies will be stimulated and will start to connect with your own energy in the same way as your energy connects with that of another human being with whom you are interacting. If you find two Capped Vortexes quite close together you will find that when stimulated they widen out and their energies overlap like a vesica pisces. I often find that Reiki Practitioners instinctively place their healing tables in between two Capped Vortexes and when they start to play the beautiful music at the beginning of the session the energies of the vortexes widen out so the male spiral from one vortex overlaps the female spiral from the other vortex creating a perfectly balanced healing space in the centre.

When not stimulated, the spirals in a Capped Vortex normally will extend out to a maximum radius of around one metre, but this does depend how powerful the vortex is - the greater the power, the wider the extent of the energy. This is also affected by the phases of the Moon. For around 12-18 hours either side of Full Moon and New Moon the Capped Vortex effectively becomes constrained within a narrow column of light around one metre in diameter and the spirals are unable to widen out any further. I got the idea to check for this when I read pages 84-85 of Nigel Twinn's book, "Beyond the Far Horizon: Why Earth Energy Dowsing Works - The Life and Work of Billy Gawn". I find the radius of this column increases gradually coming up to the time of New/Full Moon and then starts to decrease again. These cylinders form and dissolve during one of the Dance of the Dragon self-cleansing periods. During this time I have stood in a Capped Vortex and felt the electromagnetic cylinder shape both form and dissolve around me. When it is present, I am unable to move my arms from my sides but when it dissolves my arms float gently out away from my body again.

If a Capped Vortex has no physical matter sited in it the energy will probably only rise to around 2 metres above ground level and will terminate with a sphere of light about the size of a football bobbing around above it. However, if physical matter such as a tree, stone or building is situated on top of it, the energy is able to climb up around the much denser matter just as it climbs up through the underground rock strata. This is why a Capped Vortex can still be detectable several stories up in a hotel or block of flats. Again I was inspired to find this by something I read in "Beyond the Far Horizon" (page 83).

Walter Russell was an American researcher working at the same time as Guy Underwood and was also way ahead of his time. As far as I know he was not a dowser, but in his book "The Secret of Light" are diagrams showing exactly how I dowse that Capped Vortexes are structured. Russell argued everything is made up of light whereas today's Electric Universe practitioners say that everything is electric. However, when you realise that light is electromagnetic radiance it becomes obvious that both ideas are correct and that a lot of the earth energies that we dowse are actually part of the earth's magnetic field.

Infinite Vortexes

An Infinite Vortex is effectively an uncapped vortex. It has no Wizard's cap on. They are a lot more powerful than Capped Vortexes because the water below them tends to be a lot nearer the surface. Whereas a Capped Vortex may dowse between 6,500 and 8,500ub on my Bovis scale, an Infinite Vortex will dowse between 10,500ub and 15,000ub. Infinite Vortexes that are above Blind Springs and form Energy Line Nodes tend to have the highest Bovis readings.

Just like a Capped Vortex, an Infinite Vortex has the vertical column of light surrounded by two spirals of opposing polarity. However, when these spirals reach ground level they widen out immediately extending for a potentially infinite distance because there is no electromagnetic cap constraining them. The patterns dowsed at ground level can vary depending on the power of the Infinite Vortex but they usually form large spirals extending outwards for many metres, potentially filling an area as large as a stone circle or henge. They might form a combination of what Guy Underwood termed geospirals, primary haloes and secondary haloes (See Chapter 1 of Maria Wheatley's "Divining Ancient Sites") or they may form concentric rings. The main thing is they extend much, much further than the energy of a Capped Vortex does.

THE IMPORTANCE OF WATER

THE IMPORTANCE OF WATER

Water is the mirror that has the ability to show us what we cannot see. It is the blueprint for our reality, which can change with a single, positive thought. All it takes is faith, if you're open to it

Water has been shown to be intelligent, conscious and to have a memory. This is what makes it fundamentally important to the earth's self-cleansing and balancing system.

Dr Masaru Emoto imbued water with intent then froze the water crystals and viewed them under a microscope. The ones that had the intent of love put into them formed beautiful symmetrical snowflake-like crystals. Those that had been imbued with negative intent formed strange jagged, unsymmetrical patterns.

More recently the New Zealander Veda Austin has imprinted the images photographs into frozen water and this is described in her book "The Secret Intelligence of Water" and on her website <https://www.vedaaustin.com/>

Dr Gerald Pollock of the University of Washington has written a book called "The Fourth Phase of Water" about what he calls structured water. Basically, as a result of being subjected to light, water organises itself into structured and non-structured water within body cells and elsewhere. The structured water becomes a plasma like exclusion zone which excludes all particles thus becoming totally pure and changing its chemical composition to become  $H_3O_2$  instead of  $H_2O$ . This is exactly what master dowsers such as Billy Gawn and Maria Wheatley have been saying for a long time.  $H_3O_2$  is the same as the Primary or Virgin water (Maria calls it Yin water) that is formed inside the earth.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

So, water is not only intelligent, conscious and has a memory but is programmable by our thoughts and intent, is altered by light and is constantly trying to purify itself.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

A QUESTION OF BALANCE

A Stable Earth Energy Vortex

A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Stable vertical column of electromagnetic radiance (light) surrounded by spirals of opposing polarity (male and female) in equal quantities

45% electromagnetic
45% consciousness

9/26

A stable earth energy vortex comprises a vertical column, or core, of light (electromagnetic radiance) rising vertically upwards and surrounded by two spirals of opposing polarity which are of equal quantity and therefore perfectly balanced and in harmony with one another.

As we have seen, all flowing water creates an electromagnetic current and that is what rises to the surface of the earth to form an Earth Energy Vortex which is structured very much like the standard depiction of a caduceus.

A couple of years ago, Chris Tonge dowsed that energy lines comprise around 45% electromagnetism and 45% consciousness. I then dowsed that have the same proportion when they are perfectly balanced. This basically where science and magic meet. The science of the electromagnetism of the earth's magnetic field and the magic of consciousness.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

The Difference between Balanced and Unbalanced Earth Energy Vortexes

 BALANCED EEVS	 UNBALANCED EEVS
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Stable and emit beneficial harmonious energy</li><li>• Respond to beautiful music</li><li>• Manifest beautiful symmetrical pictograms</li><li>• Absorb detrimental energy</li><li>• Able to self-cleanse to get rid of stored detrimental energy</li><li>• Power down at night</li><li>• Energise you &amp; create a safe space</li><li>• Deities manifest in balanced EEVs and travel along Energy Lines</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Unstable, emit detrimental energy (geopathic stress) and pollute underground water</li><li>• Manifest jagged unsymmetrical pictograms</li><li>• Trap detrimental energy</li><li>• Unable to self-cleanse to release detrimental energy or power down at night</li><li>• Drain your energy</li><li>• Low level entities can jump from one unbalanced EEV to another</li></ul>

10/26

An EEV that is in balance will be stable and emit harmonious beneficial energy but one that is not in balance will be unstable and emit detrimental energy that contributes to the geopathic stress levels in an area by polluting the underground water that is associated with that EEV.

Balanced EEVs respond to beautiful music but recoil from heavy metal type music. When I play Tim Wheater's Gayatri Mantra all the EEVs in my house immediately spring into life, the Bovis levels increase tremendously and the spirals expand outwards with some of the EEVs even merging with one another. This often happens as my finger is hovering above the "play" button showing that it is actually my intent they are responding to.

An EEV that is in balance will manifest beautiful symmetrical pictograms similar to the water crystals that Masaru Emoto imbued with love. An EEV that is out of balance will manifest unsymmetrical jagged pictograms similar to the water crystals that Emoto imbued with negative intent.

One of the functions of an EEV is to absorb detrimental energy from the surrounding area during the day and then self-cleanse three times a day to get rid of it. If the EEV is out of balance it will not be able to self-cleanse so the detrimental energy it absorbs will remain trapped within it, potentially forever. The detrimental energy that is absorbed comes from many different sources. It may be the EMF from tech equipment in your home, the negative energy from a violent film or the news channel playing on your television, negativity from arguments in the home, the intense emotional energy released by a person going through a traumatic event or even the spirit of someone who dies suddenly. Outdoors it may come from pylons, overhead electricity cables, phone masts, 5G boxes, violent encounter, road rage and many other sources. The earth constantly seeks to keep its energy system in balance, so whatever we throw out there it will do its best to absorb anything that is non-beneficial and transmute it back into beneficial energy.

Balanced EEVs power down at night. As the sun gets lower in the sky they gradually lose power, a bit like solar panels, and their Bovis levels reduce, eventually reaching an overnight rest level of around 2,500ub on my Bovis scale. At exactly the time of Civil Dawn the next morning they spring back into life as the earth's magnetic field at that location is stimulated by the first rays of the sun emerging over the horizon. They do not power back up gradually but go straight back up to their normal daily power level. However, if an EEV is not in balance it is unable to power down at night so remains active. This is why people are often afraid of the dark and are aware of an eerie atmosphere at night. The balanced EEVs that emit beneficial energy during the day are resting but the unbalanced EEVs that emit detrimental energy are still awake.

An EEV that is in balance will energise you and create a safe space for you to stand in as you are protected within a vortex of beneficial energy (light). When arriving at a site to dowse I will first find myself a balanced EEV to stand in from where I can assess the rest of the site and determine my plan of action. However, if you step into an unbalanced EEV it will immediately start draining your energy, using it to try and re-balance itself and it could push you off quite violently depending how unstable it is. You may well end up going home early because you are feeling tired, drained and out of balance. Not only that, but you will have absorbed some of the detrimental energy from the EEV into your own energy field.

Deities and spirits will often manifest in Capped Vortexes as it is easier for them to hold their form within a vortex than in mid-air. Since Energy Lines are effectively Vortexes running horizontally along the ground these Deities and Spirits also often travel along Energy Lines. The flip side is that if an EEV is out of balance low-level entities may manifest in it and can move around by jumping from one unbalanced EEV to another.

It is therefore vitally important that you make sure you are protected when you are dowsing and likely to be interacting with these EEVs either consciously or unconsciously. Personally, as well as standing in balanced EEVs I also use crystals to protect myself. I wear a pendant of Tibetan quartz programmed to protect me and carry smokey quartz programmed to provide an energy boost to any unbalanced EEV or living being that needs it without draining my own energy. I cleanse these crystals regularly under a running tap and the electromagnetic current generated by the flowing water quickly removes any detrimental energy they have absorbed. Crystals are basically crystalised water so have the same intelligence, memory and consciousness as water. However, you must program them else they will just sit in your pocket awaiting instructions.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

How to ask the Question of Balance

A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Is this EEV in balance?

Yes / No →

Van Pohl geopathic stress scale

1. Is the Male energy too weak ?
2. Is the Male energy too strong ?
3. Is the Female Energy too weak ?
4. Is the Female energy too strong ?
5. Is the EEV wobbling on its axis ?

11/26

First locate an EEV that is associated with underground water. Many people will be lucky enough to have at least one in their house or garden, especially if they live above geologies such as chalk or limestone. If not, there is likely to be one or more close by in a field or park that you can easily dowse.

First, ascertain if the EEV is an Infinite Vortex or Capped Vortex as it will dowse differently.

Next ask whether the EEV is in balance. If the answer is YES you can comfortably dowse the EEV.

Dowsing a Balanced Vortex

The more you interact with the EEV the wider its energies will get. You can drum to or lay music to get it to expand or simply ask it to. Remember it possesses a consciousness, just like water, so it will respond to your intent and you may find you can communicate with it either through dowsing the letters of the alphabet on a chart to spell out words or psychically. If you play beautiful music to it will respond. If you stand in it and close your eyes you will find you cannot stand still and are swaying gently. Try playing some heavy metal to it and dowse how its energies recoil. Dowse its pictograms. You may find there is a different pictogram for each of the 7 colour frequencies within it. Keep checking its Bovis levels and see how they change as you interact with it.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Dowsing how a Vortex is out of Balance

If the answer to the question of whether the EEV is out of balance is NO do not proceed to dowse it. Retreat to a safe space away from it so you can assess it from a distance.

Use the Van Pohl geopathic stress chart to see how badly it is out of balance. You can download this from www.subtil.net.

Now ask 5 questions.

1. Is the male energy too weak?
2. Is the male energy too strong?
3. Is the female energy too weak?
4. Is the female energy too strong?
5. Is the vortex wobbling on its axis?

If you get a YES to question 5 get as far away from the EEV as possible. Do not connect with it in any way as it is unstable. If you feel comfortable doing so you can re-balance it remotely either through Google Earth or a photograph but do not attempt to do so on site.

Male-Female Energy out of Balance

EEVs OUT OF BALANCE
Male - Female not in harmony

One too strong and the other too weak
Both too strong or Both too weak

Scores low to medium on the Van Pohl Geopathic Stress scale

www.subtil.net

If you get a YES answer to any or all of questions 1 to 4 then you are dealing with an imbalance between the two spirals of opposing polarity (which I refer to as being male and female). This means that the EEV is unable to re-balance itself and transmute any detrimental energy trapped within it. The self-cleansing and re-balancing process involves the EEV spinning very rapidly three times a day and it seems to be the way in which the two spirals interact that allows it to re-balance itself and eject its detrimental energy. Consequently, if these two spirals are not in harmony with one another the vortex cannot do this properly.

Generally, I don't advice re-balancing EEVs on site, but if it scores very low (green) on the geopathic stress scale you may be able to do so, but always ask permission first and if you are told NO then respect that.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Vortex Wobbling on its Axis

EEVs OUT OF BALANCE

Column Wobble

Wobbles on its axis throwing detrimental energy all over the place

Difficult to dowse as centre keeps changing positions on the ground

Feelings of nausea, foreboding, evil, paranormal

Portal to a warped version of our own reality (lower realms) through which low level entities can escape

13/26

Scores very high on the Van Pohl Geopathic Stress scale

www.subtil.net

If you get a YES to question 5 then you are dealing with what I refer to as a Column Wobble.

These can be very nasty and score very high on the geopathic stress scale. The vertical column of light is unstable and will be wobbling on its axis. This may also be combined with the male and female energies being out of harmony. Were you to step into the EEV (which I do not advise you to do) it may well throw you off quite violently. The point on the ground where the column of light rises up will keep changing position so will be difficult to dowse. An Infinite Vortex with a column wobble will be much more dangerous than a Capped Vortex because it will be throwing out the detrimental energy around all over the place and this could extend for several metres in radius whereas a Capped vortex will just be swaying around like a drunken human being. Even if you are not particularly sensitive you may well experience feelings of nausea, foreboding and a sense of evil. Your subconscious will be telling you to retreat because it is not safe for you. Do not be tempted to hang around and investigate however well protected you think you are. Your energy will be drained and put out of balance, you may well absorb detrimental energy into your own energy field, you may be attacked by low level entities and worst-case scenario you may end up taking one or more of them home with you as an attachment.

Occasionally you find 3 Infinite in close proximity to one another. If these are all out of balance, they seem to combine together to create a portal to a warped version of our own reality (the lower realms or "hell") through which low-level entities can escape. However, the good news is that a group of Infinite Vortexes that are all perfectly balanced can effectively be a portal to the higher realms (Heaven).

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

TREES AND STANDING STONES IN EARTH ENERGY VORTEXES

If a tree or standing stone happens to be standing in an EEV, that vortex will amplify the power of the tree or stone several-fold.

Large trees often attract EEVs as their large root systems search for water from underground. I planted a plum tree in my garden in a place where there was no EEV. A few years later it was standing in a Capped Vortex and a few years after that the Capped Vortex it was standing in turned into an Infinite Vortex following a period of flooding.

If the EEV that a tree is standing in is out of balance the tree may well be diseased or deformed as it is absorbing the detrimental energy and trying to re-balance the unbalanced EEV. If it is standing in a column wobble you may notice it has a twisted trunk as it attempts to stabilise the vertical column of light rising up within it. The tree spirit is likely to be weak and you may find low-level entities have taken up residence in the tree and may get quite angry if you try to interact with the tree. So, if you pass a tree that does not look happy, before you decide to go and give it a hug or some healing, check whether it is standing in an unbalanced EEV.

However, if the tree is standing in a balanced EEV both the tree and the tree spirit will be vibrant, powerful and happy. You will find that the energy of a tree that is standing in a balanced vortex extends out much further than one that is not in a vortex. Try asking to be shown the extend of the energy of the tree/vortex combined and then the extent of the energy of the tree had it not been in a vortex.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

When I visit a stone circle I usually find that most of the stones are standing in EEVs, mostly Capped Vortexes because these are far more numerous than Infinite Vortexes. You can often find the sites of missing stones because the EEV is still there even though the stone has been moved. If you are going to interact with a stone in any way first make sure that it is sited in a vortex that vortex is in balance.

I do not think our distant ancestors necessarily found sites which just happened to have a circle of EEVs. I think they arranged stones with certain geological properties on ground known to be above underground and over time worked with the consciousness of the water so that eventually EEVs formed below the stones. In "Beyond the Far Horizon" (pages 54-57) Billy Gawn explains how underground water can be moved through intent and also how it can be attracted to the centre of a labyrinth.

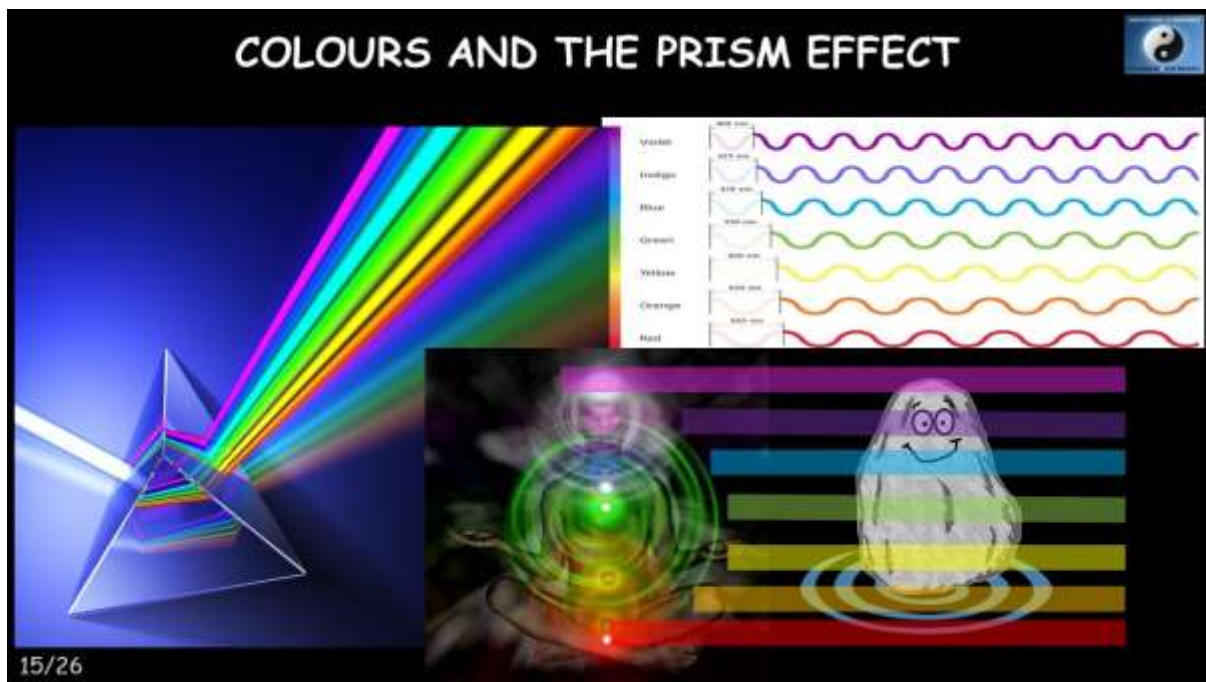

Whereas the energy of a Capped Vortex with no physical matter sited in it will be diamond-shaped in profile with the widest point one metre above ground level, if the vortex has physical matter such as a tree or stone in it the energy will rise up around that matter to encompass the entire tree or stone and extend to a perhaps half a metre or so beyond. Similarly, if you step into a Capped Vortex its energy will rise up around you and merge the vortex of energy surrounding your own body.

EEVs exist in groups which seem to equate to the size of a blind spring network. One EEV in every group will be the designated communicator vortex. It always seems to have physical matter sited in it and usually is the one which extends highest above ground level, such as the tallest stone in the group, the tallest tree in the woods or a Church spire. This communicator vortex has a torus (halo) shape floating above it. These appear to have something to do with communications (see page 197-8 of "Beyond the Far Horizon"). When the group of EEVs takes part in the self-cleansing ritual three times a day this communicator vortex will both start and end the process by spinning its torus very fast anticlockwise which causes the torus to rise higher than usual.

COLOURS AND THE PRISM EFFECT

Before we go any further I need to explain why I think light and the way it is bent and split into the individual frequencies of the colour spectrum is fundamentally important to the earth's self-cleansing and balancing process. Light is electromagnetic radiance and colour is the human brain's perception of the individual frequencies of the electromagnetic spectrum.

A prism takes in white light (the composite of all colours) and bends that light by refraction splitting it into the individual colours of the electromagnetic spectrum. These are split according to wavelength and frequency. The longer the wavelength the lower the frequency and vice versa. Of the 7 visible colours in the spectrum the colour Red has the longest wavelength and shortest frequency whereas Violet (which I feel is the same as magenta pink) has the shortest wavelength and highest frequency. Green is in the middle with its wavelength and frequency being optimally balanced.

Tom Graves and Maria Wheatley have shown that standing stones often have dowseable energy bands around them (see page 12 of "Divining Ancient Sites"). In my experience this happens when the stone is sited in an EEV. Providing the EEV is on balance the bands equate to the vibrations of the 7 visible colours of the spectrum. If it is an Infinite Vortex the lower two bands which equate to the colour frequencies of Red and Orange tend to be on the part of the stone below ground level but with a Capped Vortex all seven bands are dowseable on the part of the stone above ground. The lowest band vibrates to the frequency of the colour Red, going up in sequence through Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Purple and Violet/Magenta Pink. Next time you get chance to dowse a standing stone that is sited in a balanced vortex check the colour and Bovis levels of each band. If you find a stone that isn't sited in a vortex you will probably find it doesn't have bands. It seems that the bands are created by the energy of the stone combining with that of the vortex energy rising up around it.

The human body from the base of the spine upwards vibrates to the 7 visible colours of the spectrum with the base of the spine vibrating to the colour Red, the gut area to the colour Orange, the stomach and liver area to the colour Yellow, the heart and lung area to the colour Green, the shoulders and throat area to the colour Blue, the forehead to the colour Purple and the top of the skull to the colour Violet/Magenta pink. As the energy progresses from the base of the spine to the top of the head the wavelength decreases and the frequency increases. The Green heart centre is where the wavelength and frequency are optimally balanced which is why we feel at peace when our energy is centred at that level. I regard all colours with a shorter wavelength and higher frequency than Green as being feminine colours and all colours with a longer wavelength and lower frequency than Green as being masculine colours. If my energy is centred below heart level I feel overly grounded and can experience negative emotions such as irrational anger or fear. If my energy is centred above heart level I can feel that I have my head in the clouds, am spaced out or disoriented and will experience overly positive emotions such as intense empathy, compassion and unconditional love. However, when I am balanced in my heart centre I just feel at peace and not emotional in any way. It is this balance that all energy naturally seeks.

When EEVs spin very fast during the self-cleansing periods they re-balance themselves by gradually bringing all the energy back to centre. You can feel this process taking place by standing in a balanced Capped Vortex at the start of the self-cleansing process. The energy of the Vortex will rise up around you and merge with yours. Close your eyes and be aware of where in your body your energy is centred. This feels a bit peculiar because it starts at the base of your spine, jumps to the top of your head, jumps down to your guts, jumps back up to your forehead, jumps down to your stomach jumps up to your throat and finally ends up in your heart centre. However, if you imagine a spiral emanating from your heart with the first loop going through your stomach and throat, the second loop going through your guts and forehead and the third loop of the spiral going through the top of your head and base of your spine you can see that this is the way in which the 7 colour bands are connected. During the self-cleansing ritual the energy starts at the base of the spine (Red) and goes around this spiral in reverse ending up at the heart centre (Green). In this way the energy of the EEV is brought back to into balance by gradually shortening the wavelength of the masculine bands (Red, Orange and Yellow) and lengthening the wavelength of the feminine bands (Violet/Magenta, Purple and Blue) until they come into harmony in the Green band (heart centre in a human being) where the wavelength and frequency are more or less the same.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Maria Wheatley has found that standing stones communicate using the green and purple bands. The green frequency band is used for communicating with nearby stones and the purple frequency band is for communicating with other more distant sites. I have found that this is exactly how human beings communicate. When two people who have a strong connection with each other communicate they send out a temporary energetic connection between their heart centres (Green band). However, when communicating with people they are not so closely connected to such as a shop assistant, they send out temporary energetic connections from their foreheads (Purple band). These energetic connections are made irrespective of whether the two people are in physical proximity to one another or whether they are virtually connected such as when speaking on the telephone or on Zoom. Indeed, an energetic connection can be made simply by thinking about someone. This explains why distant healing is possible and why we can make connections with an EEV at the other side of the world via Google Earth or a photograph and re-balance it.

Pictograms in EEVs

You can dowse the pictograms that manifest around a balanced EEV. By default you will be shown the pictogram manifested by the Green colour band in the centre, but if you ask to be shown the others you will find there is a different one for each colour frequency band. You may find that the higher the frequency of the colour band you are dowsing, the more intricate will be the pictogram and the more powerful the EEV the larger the pictogram. If you stimulate the EEV so it's Bovis increases you may find that the pictogram it manifests gets larger and more complex and if you dowse the electromagnetic energy with your hands at the appropriate height you will find that it is actually a 3D manifestation rather than a 2D representation on the ground, so what dowsed as a circle is actually a sphere. In my experience with Capped Vortexes the masculine colour bands with a wavelength longer than Green tend to manifest pictograms based on squares or triangles whereas the feminine colour bands with lower wavelengths and higher frequencies manifest pictogram shapes based on the circle. Infinite Vortexes, which are much more powerful than Capped Vortexes manifest much more intricate pictograms which extend for a much greater distance.

The colour frequency bands of the human body also manifest pictograms.

THE STRUCTURE OF AN ENERGY LINE

When I dowse an Energy Line or Energy Ley I ask to be taken to the centre. Here I always find a core that feels like a coiled wire rope around 5cm in diameter running horizontally at exactly one metre above the ground. This core to me is exactly the same as the column of light rising up in the centre of vortex. From this horizontal core emanate two spirals of opposing polarity just as they do in an EEV. To me an Earth Energy Vortex is effectively an Energy Line running horizontally and an Earth Energy Vortex is effectively an Energy Line running vertically.

The two spirals of opposing polarity are shown here as red (male) which dowses as clockwise to me and blue (female) which dowses as anti-clockwise to me. One always seems to predominate just as in an EEV. I will often find one of these types of Energy Line dowses as around 72% of one polarity and 28% of the other, with its partner dowsing exactly the opposite. As the spirals get larger they eventually start to hit the ground and then travel underground emerging at the opposite side of centre. This is effectively what we are dowsing when we map the "bands" in an Energy Line on the ground. We are turning a 3D spiral into a 2D representation on the ground. This also explains why these bands always seem to be of alternate polarities (yin - yang- yin - yang).

When I dowse one of these bands with my hands from ground level upwards I find they do not rise up vertically. Instead, they bend in gradually towards the centre of the Energy Line until they get to one metre above ground level when they start to bend the opposite way, consistent with them being part of a spiral.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

What you peg out at ground level with your dowsing flags will depend what you are asking to be shown. If you ask for what is happening at ground level you will find the bands are in a slightly different position where they are if you ask for what is happening at the level you hold your rods at.

If you dowse the Bovis of every single band you will find that the Bovis is lowest nearest the centre and highest at the outer edge. You will also find that not all bands dowse was the same colour. If you then split your readings into the Yin bands and the Yang bands you will find they both go up in sequence with the spiral that predominates giving slightly higher readings.

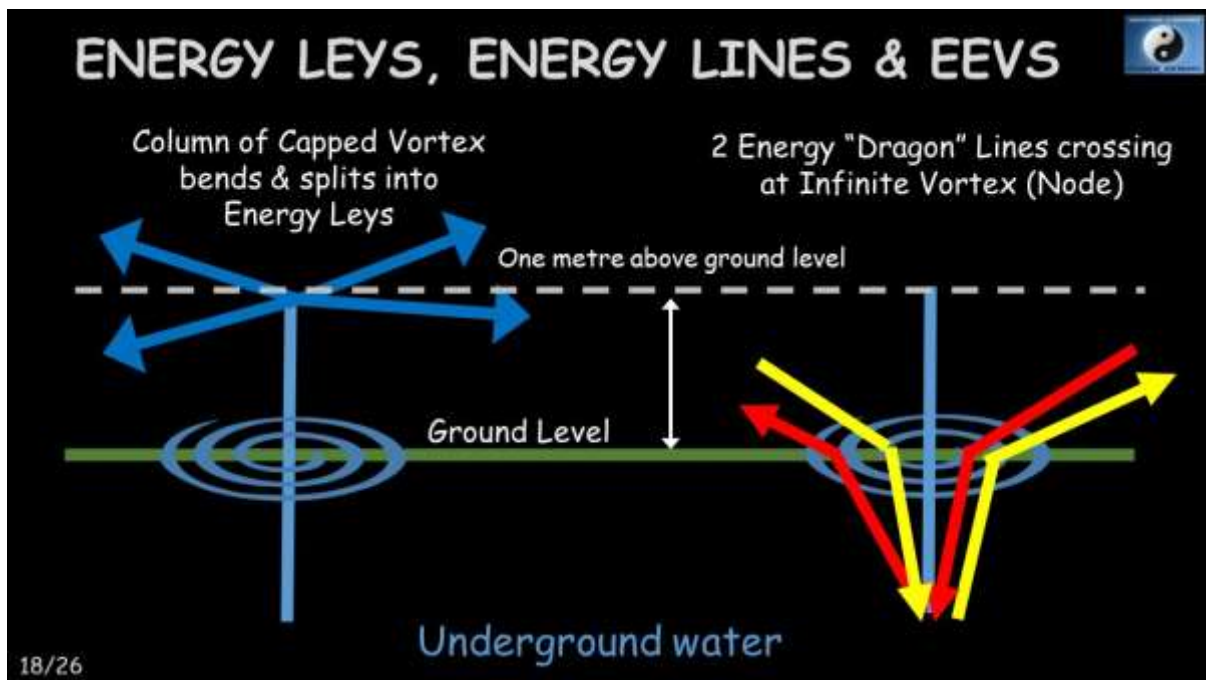

In an Energy Ley there are only usually a couple of loops to the spirals at most so these often do not even hit the ground to form bands. Stimulating the Energy Ley through intent, beautiful music or drumming can cause it to expand a little a develop a few bands but it tends to return to its original state very quickly. The Bovis of an Energy Ley is much lower than that of an Energy Line, similar to the difference in power levels between Capped and Infinite Vortices.

So look at the image below ask yourself "Am I looking down into an Earth Energy Vortex or along the length of an Energy Line?"

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

ENERGY LEYS, ENERGY LINES AND EARTH ENERGY VORTEXES

When the column of light rising up from a Capped Vortex reaches one metre above ground level I often find that it is bent by 90 degrees and starts to travel horizontally becoming an Energy Ley. Sometimes it splits into several Energy Leys. This is the very similar to the way light is refracted, bent and split by the prism effect.

When two Energy Lines cross at a Node where there is an Infinite Vortex they do so by descending underground and re-emerging at the other side of the vortex. If you measure the proportion of beneficial and detrimental energy in the Energy Line before and after it descends into the Node you will find that providing the Infinite Vortex that forms the Node is in balance, there is no longer any detrimental energy in the Energy Line when it emerges because the pure underground water has transmuted it into beneficial energy.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

When I follow an Energy Ley or an Energy Line I ask to be taken to the centre and then follow the central electromagnetic core that runs one metre above the ground. If I follow the core of a straight Energy Ley from the Capped Vortex where it emerged, I find that eventually it reaches another Capped Vortex. These Capped Vortexes serve to anchor and stabilise the Energy Ley.

When I follow the electromagnetic core of an Energy Line as it weaves across the landscape, every now and again it will descend into the ground and come back up a short distance away even though it doesn't appear to be crossing another Energy Line of the same type. Invariably when it does this I find it has descended into one of the less powerful Infinite Vortexes which again serve to anchor and stabilise it as well as cleansing it of its detrimental energy, providing of course that the EEV is in balance.

Capped Vortexes tend to read around 6,500 to 8,500ub on my Bovis scale when they haven't been stimulated in any way and Energy Leys tend to be around 20,000ub. By comparison, Infinite Vortexes tend to be between 10,500ub and 15,000ub and the Energy Lines to which they are attached can be anything from 37,000ub and upwards. So, the Capped Vortex / Energy Ley network is operating at a lower vibration or power capacity than the Infinite Vortex / Energy Line network but they still both work in tandem to keep the Earth's energy system cleansed and balanced.

So, an Energy Ley is attached to and anchored by Capped Vortexes and an Energy Line is attached to and anchored by Infinite Vortexes, and just as Capped Vortexes birth Energy Leys, so Infinite Vortexes are capable of "birthing" Energy "Dragon" Lines .....

DRUMMING A DRAGON INTO LIFE

DRUMMING A DRAGON INTO LIFE

*Mother I feel you under my feet,
Mother I hear your heartbeat
Mother I feel you under my feet,
Mother I hear your heartbeat
heya heya heya yah heya heya ho heya heya heya heya heya ho*

20/26

At a drumming session hosted by Barbara Micklejohn-Free I witnessed an Energy Line being birthed from an Infinite Vortex.

The chairs and tables in the room had been moved and a large mother drum had been intuitively placed right in the centre of the only Infinite Vortex. Prior to the session there were no Energy Lines in the room, just this one Infinite Vortex two Capped Vortexes, one of which I located myself as my safe space from which I could observe the changing energies.

As people started gathering the Bovis levels in the room gradually increased. Barbara started the session with an invocation along the lines of "We call on the energies of the Earth to rise up ..." and that is exactly what happened. Four people beat the mother drum while the rest of us formed two circles around it, one moving clockwise and one moving anti-clockwise just like the spirals of energy emerging from the Infinite Vortex around which we were moving. Gradually as the drumming intensified and the Bovis levels rose higher and higher, an Energy Line started to emerge out of the Infinite Vortex like a dragon emerging from its cave. Gradually it gained in power and started to spiral around the room eventually flowing out through the open door and over the open countryside beyond. We had effectively birthed a new Energy Line from that Infinite Vortex through the power of intent and shamanic drumming.

As the location is only a mile from my home, I have been able to monitor the area and confirm that this new Energy Line was not there before that session but became a permanent feature after the session and is still present today.

ENERGY LINE OFFSHOOTS

ENERGY LINE OFFSHOOTS

- Energy Lines send out offshoots to stabilise EEVs that are out of balance
- Offshoots are whatever polarity (gender) and colour frequency that is most suitable for the job
- Offshoots retract once the EEV is re-balanced

Torhousemuir stone circle
Dumfries and Galloway

The Earth's energy system is constantly trying to keep itself in balance so Energy Lines will send out offshoots to stabilise, cleanse and energise EEVs that are out of balance and are unable to self-cleanse. For example, an Energy Line that dowses as predominantly female and green is quite capable of sending out either male or female offshoots of any colour frequency. Being conscious and intelligent, just like the water they interact with, they will send out whatever colour frequency is required to best suited to help the EEV that is out of balance. If the EEV has a column wobble the offshoot will terminate in a spiral and wrap itself around the EEV thus stabilising the wobbling column of light so it doesn't throw its detrimental energy out as far as it would have done had it not been stabilised. If the male and female energy is out of harmony the offshoot will emit the frequencies needed to correct the imbalance.

In June 2015 I did a case study at the Torhousemuir stone circle in Dumfries and Galloway. A separate article about this is available to download on from the "Earth Energies" page of my website <https://dowsingsherwood.wixsite.com/website/earth-energies>

I found that all the stones were standing in EEVs, mostly Capped Vortexes but a few in Infinite Vortexes including two stones in the centre, both of which were standing in EEVs with column wobbles. An Energy Line running along the nearby road sent out an offshoot to each of them which served to stabilise the column wobble and energise them with the colour frequency most appropriate to correct the imbalance in the male and female energy spirals. Consequently, although there were a number of EEVs that were out of balance the feelings of foreboding normally associated with unbalanced EEVs were masked by the beneficial energy in the Energy Lines that had come to help. Over a period of several days I gradually re-balanced one EEV at a time and re-surveyed the site after each one in order to build up a picture of how the energies were changing. Eventually all the EEVs were back n balance, the offshoots retracted and I was able to sit on one of the stones during a Solar Noon Dance of the Dragon cleansing and re-balancing period and observe this amazing process happening in a perfectly balanced stone circle.

Unfortunately, at the time I did not dowse for underground water so wasn't able to monitor how the blind spring network was affected.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

THE DANCE OF THE DRAGON

Three times a day and four times a month the Earth Energy Vortexes and Energy Lines that are associated with underground water take part in a self-cleansing and balancing ritual that I have named "The Dance of the Dragon" as this is also the title of a book co-authored by someone who has been a great inspiration to me, Hamish Miller.

This process always begins exactly 20 minutes before the time of Sunrise, Solar Noon, Sunset, New Moon, First Quarter, Full Moon and Half Moon at the current location. I have also occasionally observed it happening 20 minutes before the exact time of the Equinoxes and Solstices.

I determine the exact time of these events at my current location using the Lunar Phase App on my Smartphone. Remember that although the time of the lunar events is the same at all locations, the exact time of Solar events is determined by longitude, so if you live on the east coast of Britain it may happen some 20 minutes earlier than it does on the west coast.

THE DANCE OF THE DRAGON

1. Communication between groups of EEVs (start signal)
2. Polarities of EEVs and Energy Lines Reverse
3. EEVs spin very fast releasing stored detrimental energy
4. Energy Lines expand and contract absorbing the released detrimental energy
5. Energy Lines funnel the detrimental energy into the nearest Energy Drain
6. All EEVs and Energy Lines disappear below ground for about 3 minutes
7. Polarities return to normal 60 secs before Solar/Lunar event
8. Communication between groups of EEVs (stop signal)

23/26

The first thing that happens is that exactly 20 minutes prior to the time of the solar/lunar event at the current location the torus above the designated communicator vortex starts to spin very fast anti-clockwise and rises up a lot higher than usual. This seems to be invoking some sort of communication process (see pages 197-8 of "Beyond the Far Horizon").

Second, all the EEVs and Energy Lines now reverse polarity so everything that previously dowsed as clockwise now dowses as anti-clockwise and vice versa.

Third, all the Capped Vortexes start to spin very rapidly in the manner described earlier when we discussed colour frequencies. The Bovis levels of all the EEVs and Energy Lines will rise perhaps tenfold or more at this time. If you dowse the amount of detrimental energy in an EEV before and after this spinning process you will find that the majority of it has been transmuted and the EEV now only contains beneficial energy and has been brought back into balance.

Fourth, immediately following the rapid spinning of the Capped Vortexes, the Energy Lines start to expand and contract rapidly. First the female spiral expands and contracts, then the male spiral, then the female spiral again and so on. This appears to be going through the colour frequency bands in the same way as the EEV spinning process does. The net effect is that the Energy Line has absorbed all the detrimental energy ejected by the EEVs. If you dowse the proportion of beneficial / detrimental energy in an Energy Line immediately before and after this process you will find that the amount of detrimental energy has increased significantly.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Fifth, the Energy Lines funnel the detrimental energy into the nearest Energy Drain

For information about what Energy Drains are please see <https://www.devondowers.org.uk/energy-drains-in-the-landscape-mother-earths-safety-valve-mechanism-by-richard-sears/>

Sixth, all the Energy Lines and EEVs disappear for around 3 minutes. When I say disappear, I mean I can no longer detect the spirals or central cores with my hands. When I ask where they have gone I am always directed down into the earth. It is as if the dragons have retreated into their caves. The Bovis levels in the room drop rapidly and everything feels eerily quiet and flat. If I try and stimulate the energy by playing beautiful music or drumming during this time nothing happens and the Bovis levels of the EEVs and Energy Lines show as zero.

Seventh, around 60 seconds before the exact time of the Solar / Lunar event all the EEVs and Energy Lines return with their polarities and Bovis levels back how they were before the whole process started.

Finally, the torus above the designated communicator vortex starts to spin very fast anti-clockwise and rises up again as if it is communicating that this group has now completed the ritual.

The EEVs and Energy Lines are now re-balanced and free from detrimental energy. However, as soon as the process is complete they will once more start performing their function of absorbing detrimental energy from their surroundings and cleansing the local landscape until then next Dance of the Dragon cleanses and re-balances them once more.

It is during this period that Energy Line offshoots will retract if no longer needed and the New/Full Moon cylinders around Capped Vortexes will either form or dissolve.

As we have noted however, if an EEV is out of balance it is unable to take part in this process. Fortunately, its is possible for us to re-balance them and thus help the Earth's energy system to keep in balance and harmony....

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

RE-BALANCING EARTH ENERGY VORTEXES

RE-BALANCING EEVs

Re-balance remotely with High Frequency Colour healing using an Egyptian pendulum, crystals or Bach flower remedies.

Once re-balanced:-

- The EEV and associated underground water will cease emitting detrimental energy and will now emit beneficial energy.
- Any energy line offshoots that have been stabilising the EEV will retract at the next Dance of the Dragon.
- The pictograms will become symmetrical rather than jagged.
- The EEV will be able to self-cleanse and take part in the Dance of the Dragon.

I have been re-balancing Earth Energy Vortexes for the last 15 years. For the first 14 years I did this remotely via Google Earth using crystals. I would establish an energy connection with the vortex and then use perhaps 7 or more different crystals one after the other holding in them my hand and moving them either clockwise or anti-clockwise. All this was done intuitively. It was like I stepped backwards and my Higher Self stepped forwards leaving me just watching my hand moving knowing I had not consciously caused it to do so.

Then last year (2019) I discovered High Frequency Colour dowsing using an Isis pendulum. I watched a YouTube by Maria Wheatley and used the information in Chapter 8 of "Divining Ancient Sites" to teach myself how to do it and I found it is an excellent way to re-balance EEVs without using several crystals one after another because the pendulum does all the work for you. Maria does courses in Egyptian Pendulum and High Frequency colour dowsing through her esoteric college <https://www.esotericcollege.com/>

I realised that the Isis pendulum is effectively a prism which takes in white light and refracts it into the different frequencies of the colour spectrum. Holding the Isis pendulum over Google Earth, a map or a floor plan I would watch it move anti-clockwise then clockwise several times. I realised this was exactly what I had been doing with crystals for the last 14 years. My hand was emitting white light which was then refracted by the crystal in my hand to become whatever colour frequency was required. Each time I put a crystal down and picked up a different one it emitted a different colour frequency with several different frequencies being required to bring the EEV back into balance.

EARTH ENERGIES SIMPLIFIED, IT'S A QUESTION OF BALANCE

Very recently myself and other members of the Ridings Dowzers have found that EEVs can also be re-balanced by using Bach Flower Remedies dissolved in water that is charged to very high Bovis levels. However, this is a work in progress so I will not describe it in any detail here.

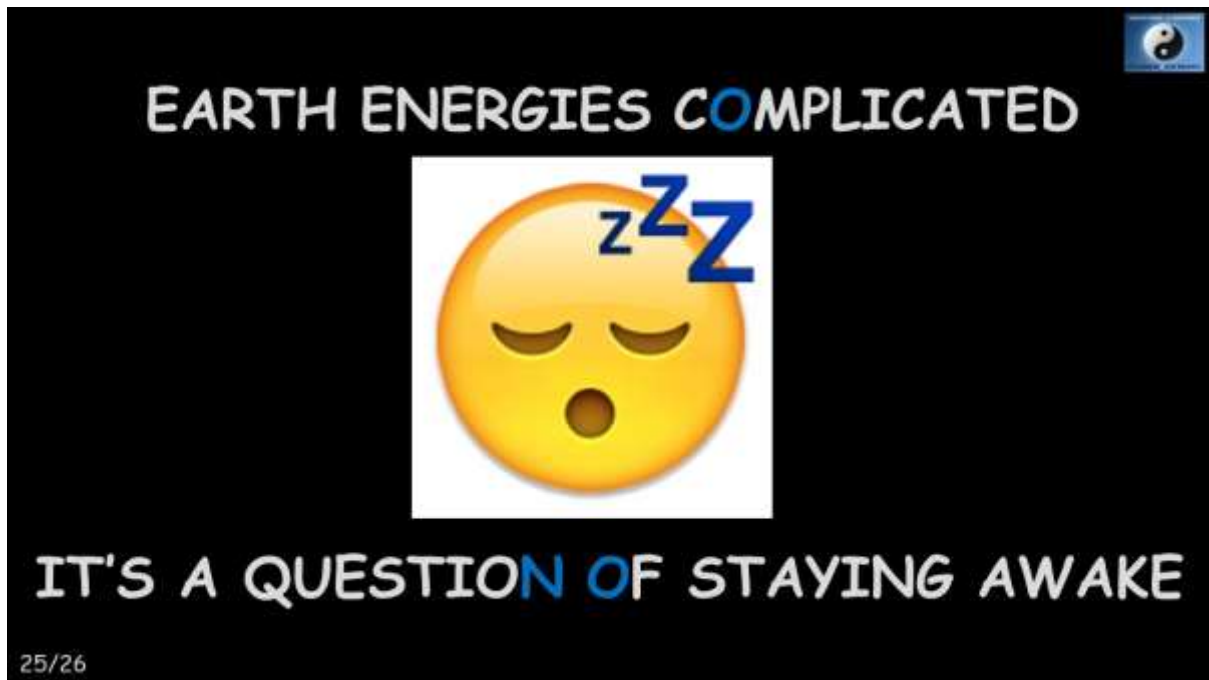

Once an EEV is back in balance it will cease emitting detrimental energy and start emitting beneficial energy and so will the underground water that is associated with it. So, if you re-balance the Infinite Vortex above a Bling Spring all the underground water in the blind spring network will cease emitting detrimental energy and will start emitting beneficial energy which will have very positive effects on the geopathic stress levels in the area.

Once the EEV is back in balance it will no longer require the help of the Energy Line offshoots that have been stabilising it and these will retract during the next Dance of the Dragon period.

You will find that you can now dowse symmetrical pictograms around you EEV

Most importantly, the EEV will now be able to self-cleanse and take part in the Dance of the Dragon so it can now keep itself in balance and play its part in the earth's amazing self-cleansing and balancing system.

And that is why I think Earth Energies are where science and magic meet.

Hopefully, the fact that you're still here means the document has lived up to its title and I haven't just delivered a narrative that became "Earth Energies Complicated, It's a Question of Staying Awake".

Do feel free to contact me at this email address and I'll send you a link to a private website from which you can download some of my articles about Earth Energies and related subjects.
