

THE LINCOLN CATHEDRAL CODE – A QUICK SUMMARY

After reading Dan Brown's Da Vinci Code back in 2006, I happened upon another researcher calling himself Dan Green who told a slightly different version of the "Da Vinci Code", this time centring around the enigmatic Gothic Cathedral in Lincoln England. Living reasonably close to Lincoln, I became fascinated by this mystery and ended up writing a series of contributor articles for the now defunct Dan Green Codex website.

The Dan Green Codex is essentially a Freemasonic style vision quest that starts at a roundel of The Last Supper in the East window of Lincoln Cathedral and has been laid down, not by human hand, but at the behest of the collective unconscious, for future generations of Psychic Questers to decode and unravel. Upon Christ's platter in this stained glass, Dan Green noticed not the usual bread, but a dog. A dog that looked uncannily like the dog that stares lovingly up at Poet Laureate Alfred Lord Tennyson on the statue behind Lincoln Cathedral. The face of Christ in the stained glass also looked uncannily like an amalgamation of the poetic characters of Tennyson, Shakespeare and Sir Francis Bacon. Guided by synchronicity, Dan Green embarked on a journey that encompassed Rennes-le-Chateau, Glastonbury and Stratford-upon-Avon, expertly decoding clues hidden in stained glass, paintings, statues and tombstones, and ending up in the graveyard of a former Templar church at the southeast corner of Lincoln Cathedral. Here stands a tombstone in the shape of a Masonic Altar beneath which he concluded rest the relics of Mary Magdalene spirited from Rennes-le-Chateau to Lincoln by the Templars. He further suggested that Mary Magdalene was in fact the female Christ who was murdered by having a dagger thrust into her pregnant abdomen. Whether truth or allegory, it makes for a fascinating quest.

After writing four books on the subject, Dan Green is now happily retired so the Dan Green Codex website is no longer accessible. However, for those who wish to know more, a few articles and videos are still around on the internet:

An interview with Dan Green by Andrew Gough

https://andrewgough.co.uk/interview_green/

Lincoln Cathedral – Freemasonry's Greatest Secret on the World Mysteries blog site

<https://blog.world-mysteries.com/mystic-places/lincoln-cathedral-freemasonrys-greatest-secret/>

The ultimate secret of Lincoln Cathedral on the Unexplained Mysteries blog site

<https://www.unexplained-mysteries.com/column.php?id=221760>

YouTube: Jesus and Mary Magdalene - The Truth to the Bloodline of Jesus Christ (1hr 44 mins)

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-abGbcU5W-g>

